

MoodSignal — Sample Posts by Category

50 example Reddit posts from data/processed/clean.csv, grouped by label (depression, bipolar, anxiety).

Depression — 17 of 1144 posts

Post 1

difficult to have the strength to wake up everyday some people dont understand that it was hard to wake up when youre not motivated and when you woke up early it is just you had strength to wake up and atleast self reflect not because you wanted to do chores

Post 2

a post that will make people mad for the last week and a half i have gone completely cold cut with my meds 150mg wellbutrin 300mg effexor and my mental state is the worst it had been in a long time im extremely sad and tired 24/7 i eat next to nothing during the day and devour junk food during the night but i feel like i can laugh again when i read a stupid joke or see a sarcastic tiktok and those little moments are making me sure im not going back to meds

Post 3

i feel like im in a room between rooms im going to start dissociating soon i can tell when its about to happen i feel like i only exist for other peoples benefit im just a paycheck for my partner im just someone who takes the kids out on the weekend or helps put them to bed at night im just there to help and then when im done helping i need to shut the fuck up and go away and stop being needy and annoying nobody has time for me nobody gives a damn what i want but everyone needs me to exist is it worth living when you have nothing to live for and nothing to look forward to im just existing for the sake of existing id rather not exist anymore my feelings are not severely painful by any measure but they are constant and gnawing its this constant low level pain that is grind me down its hard to describe its boredom and loneliness and resentment mixed in with regret at all the choices ive made that lead me to this point in my life

Post 4

why is life so unfair i see on the tv internet all these celebrities who are incredibly rich living their best lives i am 35 years old and i have nothing no house no real friends i have vitiligo which could spread all over my body i never been in a relationship and probably never will due to vitiligo

Post 5

i dont feel great im 14 and i just wanna die i have a therapist and shes nice and all but shes doing nothing i still wanna die none of my friends ever wanna hang out with me and it makes me feel worse ive been trying to act more happier if thats the problem but i dont think thats working im just so tired of everything my dream is to explore the outside and abandoned places but even if i could get out of my bed my parents would never let me get past the front door recently two guys at my school said i was fine and i thought that was nice but then my friend told me they were trying use me for my body it disgusted me im 14 i feel unsafe at school and at home i know my family loves me but i feel unsafe sometimes my parents say i dont have depression when ive literally overdoosed on meds just to sleep they say i have too many problems not my fault you probably smoked while you were preg mom i hate saying all this but its the internet and you dont know who i am anyways i wanna kill myself and i dunno what to do

Post 6

please help ive been stuck in another depressive episode for months now my last one was 4 years ago and i really thought thats the end of it i dont understand how i got here again i cant live like this and im lost on what to do im just trying to exercise everyday but i feel awful

Post 7

being born mortal is worse than not having been born in the first place my mortality recently hit me for real and its been sending me into a deep depression everything feels utterly pointless because no matter how well i live ill die and not remember any of it there wont be any legacy of me since the universe itself will die in the end nothing has any point to it were just here to plug our ears and pretend that were never going to die despite also being certain of it my whole life just fell apart and now i can barely enjoy things knowing itll all be gone i keep mourning my friends and family knowing everything i do with them amounts to nothing no professional help or medication can change these things existence is just a prison where they dangle all these wonderful things in front of you and then remind you that youll be dead and none of it will have mattered theres no afterlife no legacy nothing this feels like the cruelest joke imaginable i have zero motivation to pursue a career knowing its all for nothing i can barely enjoy my hobbies knowing theyre just a distraction and wont be remembered by anyone

Post 8

i feel my soul is deadvery damaged i hurt her deep deeply she was the love of my life and i threw it away for casual sex we were so connected on such a deep level we were miles apart yet i could feel her in my soul all the time we were one and i hurt her deeply i cared for her showed her new things loved her wanted the best for her but alcohol brought out my shallowness its not the fact that its over its seeing her face of devastation when i told her every time i close my eyes she has told me to forgive myself and move on but i just cant i would do anything to take back what i did i would trade 1000 lifetimes for one minute with her i am at my lowest right now

Post 9

why is it that i bend over backwards but i never get the same courtesy it always seems like i work super hard to make sure that everyone gets included in but then i dont get it in return i already think im getting closer to my time of month so thats not helping my mood but it always seems like the people i call friends in my life never seem to give me the same inclusion when i really need it

Post 10

when does it all stop when do the tears stop when does this empty feeling stop when does the urge to selfharm stop when does the pain stop im tired of crying myself to sleep and having no one to talk to about this they see me happy one day and the following they try list all my triggers i feel like the only reason i havnt killed myself is because of my sister shes the only one that understands why i take the pills shes the only one who asks how im going on a specific day but again she is a child so i know i cannot burden her with these thoughts and she cannot become the people i need her to be and her words are starting to sound like whispers compared to the screaming pain everytime they bring up the pills it makes me feel even more useless than i already feel everytime i have to remind someone how to love me i somehow lose the love i have for myself i see you trying but its just not enough when does the pain of it all end will i ever be happy in this life or should i just give up while its still early suicidal ideation creeping in im diagnosed as chronic depressive bipolar 2 and adhd im the rock and support for everyone else around me im headed to a show right now to see one of my favorite artists with my roommate best friend and all i can think about is the highway by my apartment seems like a good place to stand or walk into at the moment ive called the suicide hotline before i even work in healthcare and take care of behavioral health patients but i just feel like between my life my obligations my job i have nowhere to go

Post 11

Post 12

feelings now i guess my life starting to feel normal but then depression strikes again and i dont know how to feel about anything friends dont believe me anything im saying and i just feel down sorry if this is bad english its my first post here i was just feeling happy about life but just something went down edit hope anyone responds here sorry for bad english i know im not very good at english

Post 13

i wish to be ill this has probably been talked about so many times on here but i dont know where else to turn to about this i so deeply wish i was terminally ill or had cancer i want a time limit on my life as ive just given up im not healing and im not declining i dont want to kill myself but im not exactly happy and thriving either if i had a time limit i can at least try and enjoy before i have to go and i dont have to let people down by killing myself if i had the option i would rot in my bed but i keep pushing maybe one day things will get better im not even a quarter way through my life i dont want people upset or disappointed in me either but each second i feel my body just weighs more and more to the point i cant even lift my arms and not in the physical sense but life is just a struggle now and being ill would be a great reason a great excuse if i had cancer i wouldnt even do chemo i would just accept my fate i just want this to be over and done with id be less afraid too im horrified of death losing my conscious and it being able to happen at any moment but if i knew id have a timer things would seem much more easier

Post 14

weird suicide thoughts im severely suicidal and do selfharm almost everyday only on one part of the body so even if i have band aid on it all the time it wont look as weird if i have several but what i want to share when i think about killing myself the first thing that comes to my mind is how it would inconvenience everyone around me i dont have much people who actually love me like close to zero but i still think about how it would be a hassle for them to like ship my body since i live far away from my immediate family the second thing that comes to my mind is its absolutism and irreversibility im an atheist and i think when im gone i have nowhere to go ill just stop existing no heaven to watch how they will react or if they will miss me or think of me at least i hope i get the courage i need soon to end it all and when i get that courage im pretty sure ill be happy to go

Post 15

25 and depressed af im 25m and really got nothing going for me right now i am lucky to have a few friends here but everything is dull each time i even hangout i feel like i radiate bad energy i just think how i could be better literally have not been working as much because my work is flexible i smoke weed every night usually so maybe that plays a factor i was with my friend and his girlfriend and her friends the other day i left early because i was tired and wanted to sleep in my own bed i just feel like a burden all the time and dont want to ruin the energy i feel like shit why am i like this

Post 16

benzos stopping suicidal thoughts so im having a severe episode and been having heavy suicidal thoughts and ideation ive been prescribed wellbutrin and lorazepam i have noticed that the lorazepam even in the smallest dose stops the suicidal thoughts anyone can explain why that is

Post 17

i am at my lowest point i feel terrible i dont care about life i dont want to care about it i dont want things to get better i just want out these feelings are becoming crippling at this point and im struggling to take care of myself kids or work i have no interest or motivation to do anything i am so very alone i dont wanna talk to other people anyway because im just bad energy and i hate to keep bringing that to people i care about i live because i have two daughters that i love but thats it i feel stuck and hate that i have obligations like work when i can barely stop crying all day

Bipolar — 17 of 1098 posts

Post 1

i cant believe im like this forever i cant believe this is real and this is me i am bipolar and ive always know but its just crazy to have it reiterated to you i am going to have to be like this forever on meds forever in therapy forever its so fucking over whelming knowing none of my relationships will ever be stable fucking hurts

Post 2

bipolar struggle ive been diagnosed with bipolar since i was 18 i spent over a year in and out of hospital until they came to the conclusion of bipolar disorder ii my mood swings are rapid and hard to control im currently on sodium valproate lamotrogine catapres lamitan ive read a book to understand my diagnosis better but i still struggle every day ive lost 3 jobs in the past 12 months due to mood swings into an irritable mood causing me to just leave when im feeling overwhelmed or on the other hand getting really depressed and breaking down at work feels like bipolar is taking over my life i cant find a psychologist that i can work with my psychiatrist just keeps tweaking my dose medication isnt gonna be the fix to all my problems im still always gonna have rapid mood swings anyone able to help me with any coping strategies or how they keep up with their mood swings

Post 3

what do you do to help with taking meds ill go first i take my meds at night i have a 10 section pill box where i pre cut my blister packs into individual portions and put them into the sections which i stick a small blank sticker on top of each section of the pill box on the sticker i write the date next to the day of the week so for example 24fri or 26sat so on and so forth this way i know at a glance whether ive taken the pills for the day or not or whether ive missed a day of meds

Post 4

unloved i feel like im too hard to love im in my late 20s and i have bp ii ive been medicated and going to therapy regularly for years but i still have mood swings etc i thought i managed it well im a lesbian and i try really hard to make relationships work but in the end im always too much i even escaped an abusive one it hurts so badly especially when i think about the fact that in multiple relationships when my partners were going through their depressions not bipolar but reg depression i held them down to the point of putting their needs and feelings above my own and neglecting myself which i now know is unhealthy and then they get betterbut the second i start struggling im too much and they dont know if they can do it its frustrating because im really upfront about the fact that i have bp ii and theyll say it doesnt matter etc but when the symptoms show up they bail if you ask my exes or anyone ive dealt with romantically 9 times out of 10 theyll describe me as sweetbubbly and one said i was amazing but if thats true why cant they love me i just want to be loved i want to get married one day and maybe have a child and live happily ever after but i feel like thatll never happen for me or it wont last because ill have an episode and everything will be ruined

Post 5

id rather have cancer then at least thered be a hope of getting cured and resuming a mostly normal life if i knew i just needed to push through the next few years of misery and then it would be over one way or another then i think i could do it and if i did end up dying at least it would be out of my control no one judges or blames a person who dies of cancer no one judges someone for dropping out of life completely to go through chemo no one blames themselves for their kid dying of cancer people have so much compassion and sympathy for people with cancer why is it that the same compassion isnt extended to people with incurable lifelong crippling mental illness why does someones pain have to be cosmetically obvious for people to care or even believe its real i talked about this with my mom who barely survived her own cancer and she agreed with me without hesitation i at least feel grateful to have family that can understand and support me a luxury i know many of us dont have

Post 6

how to make friends when your bipolar ive tried making friends in the past but it all didnt went well because im bipolar i pushed everyone away during my depressive episodes and contact them when im manic just to push them away again when im depress i find it really hard to maintain relationships any advice

Post 7

irritability in relationships hey everyone amp happy saturday i hope youre taking care of yourselves ive been struggling a lot with irritability lately i can still control myself but i pick up arguments with my parents i get mad and annoyed easily and its starting to affect my relationship to my bf as well i dont want to ruin anything because i really care about the people in my life i am self aware and i know that i need to work on it but id like some insight or some advice from fellow bipolar people thanks a lot

Post 8

maintaining my own mental health while helping a friend i have bipolar disorder with a comorbid anxiety disorder i became symptomatic around the time i was 13 and was diagnosed at 19 im turning 40 in a few months so ive sufferedlivedalmost diedlaughed through this illness for over 2 decades i have a friend who i will call amy amy was recently diagnosed with generalized anxiety after a stressful life event amy knows about my diagnoses and we are very close so she has turned to me for questions and emotional support i love amy i want to support amy the best i can but the amount of emotional support she is asking for is starting to drain my own mental health resources for staying stable additionally amy makes a lot of comments about our experiences being the same and she gets whats its like for me now when she very clearly does not she is not making these comments from a place of ill intentions i know mental illness is not a contest and mental health treatment is important for everyone however i have started to internalize it as amy is downplaying everything ive been through does anyone have any advice on how i can support amy while protecting your own mental health

Post 9

why doesnt my family understand i dont know how to get my family to see me for both the good and the bad ive struggled with mental health issues for so many years and i think so many of my family members just see me as a big failure im moving into a brand new apartment on may 1 and im trying to share this good news with others i really thought my family would be more excited for me truthfully i was so depressed and out of control in my current apartment im amazed sometimes that im still alive i dont know why my family cant see that and cant see the real me i have a great therapist and am working on this in therapy but just wanted to post here looking for a little input and support

Post 10

on moods and mania i have been thinking a lot about this today and i just want to share some thoughts with you guys it has been 18 years since i was diagnosed with bipolar disorder that i live with this is no surprise to anybody who knows me this disease is so much more nuanced than the typical extreme ups and downs description it usually receives i have survived two absolutely devastating depressions and approximately twenty manic episodes attempting to describe what mania is like is the worst frustration it happens gradually and then comes upon me like a brick to the face first i stop sleeping then the creativity comes the blank page beckons to me the way freshly baked bread might entice the starving it is soft at first subtle even but the persistent pentopage prevails and soon i am unable to make sense of or even put into context the hasty and paranoid puzzle of words grandiosity accompanies the writing then the delusions come and i believe that this puzzle of words is worthy of a pulitzer other things happen too reckless driving substance use rage impulsivity irrationality ultimately i surrender to complete psychosis saying it is a lot is an understatement i have destroyed and lost relationships with family members and friends because of this illness i have said and done unforgivable things but it is my deepest wish that people understand that becoming manic is not a choice it has happened to me whilst on medication and off alike i would never choose it im simply reflecting on all of this today because earlier i read this bipolar disorder results in 92 years reduction in expected life span and as many as one in five patients with bipolar disorder completes suicide national institute of mental health thats the reality its my reality i do not want to ever become a statistic and i want to live as full a life as possible here is what im grateful for i have an incredible support network i have doctors and therapy i have the most loving and supportive family and friends ones who are able to look beyond my illness and recognize that i am not me in those manic moments and i am grateful for the ability to empathize with all those who struggle we can do together what we could never do alone

Post 11

yall i cleaned my room today i havent cleaned my room in months and it was causing me so much anxiety but i couldnt make myself do it well today i did it it feels so good i also cut my dogs nails today and that was another thing i kept not doing that was causing me stress today was a decent day

Post 12

im new im very recently diagnosed in conjunction w asd im just very scared of my head im scared of the way my brain makes me think and i am scared of how little control i have over it ive no idea what world ive entered into mostly because i dont understand much yet despite wanting to ive studied psychology at university before dropping out multiple times and its so easy to look at things on the outside and understand them but to look introspectively is so difficult its difficult to analyse the thoughts i should and shouldnt listen to its difficult to place or recognise moments of irritability excitement etc sometimes im panicking without even knowing im panicking or why im just very much in a state of barely knowing whats going on in my head until the aftermath unless its depressive thoughts those are pretty easy to figure out and by far the most common for me people near me just say i shouldnt think that way but its hard explaining why i feel i have no control over how i genuinely feel if that makes sense does it get better ive been prescribed mood stabilisers disability hi all i just wanted to announce that im applying for disability for the first time was just looking for anyone to shed some light on this process and tell me the good the bad the ugly thanks in advance

Post 13

Post 14

i accidentally doubledosed lamictal and seroquel im sitting in my kitchen not at work because i accidentally doubledosed my meds last night i was absent minded and totally didnt remember if i had taken them or not i didnt want to not take them so i took them not knowing if it would be a double dose or not ampx200b when i woke up this morning i realized that yes it was a double dose i was speaking incoherently it took me forever to write the text message to my boss and walking to the bathroom felt incredibly laborious i fell back asleep for five more hours ampx200b right now my biggest side effect is slower breathing not too slow where im worried but slow enough that its different and im noticing it ampx200b i was really really worried for a spell but i know that this will work its way through my body and ill be back to normal shortly im going to go fall back asleep again and hopefully wake up feeling better ampx200b i found some comfort searching bipolar reddit yesterday so i hope that sharing my experience is helpful to someone im fine i will be fine and im just going to take it really slow and take good care of myself today oh and be more careful about taking my pills

Post 15

do we experience every single emotion stronger than others i just saw something that really affected me and emotion consumed me i immediately wanted to harm myself are all our emotions stronger than others or am i dramatic and only experience clinically strong emotions in episodes

Post 16

im scared of my bipolar disorder but im also scared of feeling better hello there everyone ampx200b ive been recently diagnosed with bipolar 2 months ago and it has been a real struggle to live my day to day life like normal im finally on the right dose of lithium and started seeing good results with my emotions until my anxiety disorder decided to come back now i have to take seroquel to try to calm me down because im deeply afraid of everything now ampx200b i think the mixed episode i just had scared me so much that now im terrified at the idea of having another one i almost dont want to feel better because i dont want to have hope thinking im okay now just to have a new episode right after i dont know how to explain it i know i want to feel better deep down because i feel miserable but im also afraid does anyone else feel the same

Post 17

just diagnosed with bipolar after receiving the diagnosis i feel slightly better about my actions during a manic episode last year but im still so embarrassed and the repercussions are really making my current depressive state worse i decided to move to miami last minute with barely any money get a dog start an electrical engineering degree that im terrible at and hate oh and also to make it worse i married an illegal resident to help fund my life arguably the worst amongst other things my entire personality changed now i have a husband that i have basically told i am not going through with the visa and have straight up ghosted for months because i cant even afford a divorce or to face him blew any money i had on shopping partying even drugs which i dont even like i have no money now and this degree is taking up all of my time but i have invested too much already to just quit i love my dog

but it was an extremely irresponsible decision im basically stuck living with all of these things now and i dont know how to get out of it i feel so trapped in my mistakes now that i have a clear head and understand what was happening i keep telling myself that if i can just finish school and get my finances on track i can fix it but i have several months to go and i dont know how i can live with these mistakes much longer

Anxiety — 16 of 1125 posts

Post 1

someone is coming home i know ive triggered a reaction from my title how do you cope im nearly 30 and might break up with my partner over this if i cant control it i know this might be a fact of my shitty brain but im doubt my best to manage it does anyone have any suggestions edit to clarify my partner is arriving home soon

Post 2

zoloft side effects took 50mg of zoloft for the first time about 40 hours ago and have been feeling extreme brain fog and derealization yesterday and today and also i feel extremely fatigued and sleepy i only took one pill but i was wondering if anyone knows how long would it take for these side effects to disappear

Post 3

psychiatrist or psychologist f22 tw self harm suicide hey there i hope this is the right place to post about this i dont know anyone irl who deals with so much anxiety so here we go since last summer ive been dealing with a lot of intrusiveobsessive thoughts about my relationshipmy partne etc which caused a lot of anxiety from july all the way through december i felt like i was going crazy i felt so much anxiety and so much emotional pain to the point where i thought i couldnt function properly i wouldve done anything to stop feeling anything at all and everything between me and my partner was fine i didnt have any reason to feel like this in january i started to feel a bit better anxiety wise but i started to self harm again i dont do this constantly only once or twice every few months i guess in january and february i felt so sad and so numb that i didnt care about anything anymore i think i also experience suicidal thoughts but i am very afraid to die so idk if i actually do experience them i still feel a little bit anxious and i do experience self harm thoughts here and there but overall i can function decently ive never been to a psychiatrist or psychologist and so idk where i should start the thing is therapy is very expensive and i cant afford it right now i could afford going to a psychiatrist tho but i dont know if my situation is that bad in order to reach out to a psychiatrist i am scared they wont take me seriously and that they will tell me to go to therapy instead do you have any advice regarding my situation any response would be much appreciated

Post 4

buspirone for gad panic disorder hi how effective has buspirone been for those of you who suffer from panic disorder or generalized anxiety im hoping to take it on its own starting next week

Post 5

10 years of celexalexapro and thinking of making the switch to zoloft ive noticed the frequency of stressful events leading to anxiety cycles and acute depression has been quite alarming and figured maybe the meds have finally pooped out im in therapy im doing yoga im keeping busy ive got a loving partner its just this lil demon in my head seems to be gaining more and more experience points and has been gaining a foothold on my day to day thoughts or opinion of those who have been meds this long thanks

Post 6

prejudice or attraction theres a guy at work that flirted with me a lot at a work party and now we are avoiding each other like a plague he is always sending someone else to talk to me and when he sees me he doesnt even say hi i am an immigrant woman and i cant speak his language so well sometimes i believe that he is avoiding me bc he has no patience to talk with me the anxiety hits hard and i cant confront him bc of the language barrier and the anxiety of speaking another language i need some tips on how to overcome this fear

Post 7

how to stop overthinking for some time now ive been overthinking a lot its mostly when im in bed about to go to sleep its like my mind is going 1000 mph and i cant stop it it sucks and i lose hours of sleep cos of it if anyone knows some tips or tricks that can help me please let me know

Post 8

its like an unending barrage if i thought i managed my anxiety poorly before oh boy this last month has been easily the worst in terms of anxiety ive ever experienced my first born is due in two months farming season is about to start constantly awake until 34 am reeling about the real possibility of financial ruin due to the costs of having a child and the current state of the agricultural industry the thought of changing careers only amplifies my anxiety x1000 thats the worst part being unable to sleep sometimes ill start to go asleep and the slightest noise will wake me up or ill just wake up in a full blown panic ive been spending all day either being a nervous wreck and if im not outwardly nervous my body is still showing physical symptoms of it almost like its subconscious sometimes i feel like the anxiety itself is scarier than the situation i worry myself sick over my other new trigger is every little ache pain or cough i get i spend the entire day spiraling down a hole thinking im obviously dying and i wont be there to see my daughters first steps and the farm thats been in my family for 5 generations will be sold because nobody will be there to take care of it i hate the physical symptoms the most the fast heartbeat constantly being on edge body and headaches its like even if i think im getting a rope around my anxiety its still there in my subconscious wreaking havok on me im sorry if this was convoluted or hard to follow i just dont have many people i can talk to and if i can they have a hard time understanding just how hard this affliction makes things these things im worried about are valid certainly anybody who isnt nervous about having a kid isnt in their right mind i suppose but having a generalized anxiety disorder coupled with panic attacks in the first place just makes it hell on earth and makes you not only question your own abilities but also question your own sanity at times

Post 9

oxazepam hey i have been taking oxazepam 75mg15mg once per day for my anxiety for the past 2 months im neurotic about getting addicted eventhough i dont think i have too high risk for that i have been taking those pills max 2 days per week and im even keeping two weeks pause from using them atm i try to avoid taking those pills even two days in a row i have them as needed and i was wondering can i continue using them like this or am i going to be addicted like if i take 15mg oncetwo times per week for a month and keep two weeks pauses just to make sure does anybody here use these pills as needed and how often do you take them they really help with my anxiety but i want to respect that medicine so i try to take them only when my situation is really bad

Post 10

just some thoughts for you be patient with yourself its okay to say no you are experiencing your life nobody knows how you feel your feelings are valid and its okay to set boundaries its okay if you cant do it today it takes a lot of energy for you to always fight against your worries and anxiety so its totally understandable if you need some space and peace dont surround yourself with people that drain your energy its okay to let them go this gives you more energy to focus on the good people and things in your life i hope you have a good day today but also dont have too much expectations its totally fine if not everything is going to work out today

Post 11

dentist anxiety hi i managed to get through my appointment today but they told me i have to come back for 4 fillings and a root canal and now im petrified does anyone have any idea what i can do to relax before and during my appointment and also if anyone can explain what happens during these procedures id be really grateful also im 17 so anyone have any guidance on how to tell my parents i have bad teeth as they expect to be perfect but due to other mental health issues i havent been taking care of them hence my cavities also how do you know to trust a dentist is it normal for them to look in your mouth for like a minute and tell you what needs to happen they didnt take xrays btw tia

Post 12

help why do i check my phone so much even the whatsapp i am unable to concentrate on anything else properly i just tend to wait for people to text me

Post 13

coffee and antipsychotics greetings people i hope youre having a good day first of all how are your experiences with coffee and antipsychotic meds ive been on abilify and alprazolam for years never had been feeling alert on them always either sleepy or have weird feeling in my stomach now ive tried everything with these meds be it smoking or alcohol i stopped all of it because it caused very nasty problems with me when i stopped i finally felt myself even though ive read on wikipedia that coffee can also cause problems when you take these meds its says even small amounts can cause side effects thats called caffeine induced anxiety im not really sure how am i supposed to be awake i mean im unemployed still in hands of my parents and other family members who take care of me and understand my problems but how did you manage to stay awake without coffee or did coffee really help you without feeling weird all time while on meds it would be stupid for me to sleep all day and miss some important events or have fun chatting with friends or playing video games or better yet studying different topics like electrical engineering or making homemade circuits not electrical engineer just doing something for hobby

Post 14

im scared to move away from my home city because i will miss my parents i want so badly to move out and explore new things i also dont want to be far from my family i have always been super close to my family and i find comfort in living close to them i feel anxiety just thinking about not having my mom around when im sad or my dad around to talk about the hockey game or my grandma to talk about anything i am 21 and i live on my own but im still in the same city as my family so they are right there whenever i need them how can i conquer my fears and live in a new place and explore new things even if its just for a year or two ive wanted so badly to move in with a friend who has an extra spot but again the anxiety of being without my family is so scary thanks for taking the time to read this

Post 15

try to massage the back of your head with your palm and then concentrate on feeling it and imagine that you are thinking your thoughts and feeling feelings there this technique helped me to develop awareness of my thoughts and feelings as observer also it helped me to heal my anxiety and neurosis i call this back of head method i hope you try it and it works if your attempt was successful and you started feeling calmness and ease i recommend you to regularly practice this method for months to get good results you wont even recognize your reaction to impulses after long practice

Post 16

how do i know i really have gad because of my bad academic performance i was advised to go to see a doctor and i did after 1h of taking he said i have a slight depression and gad and gave me a description to take brintellix i didnt feel i had gad so i went to see another one this time i didnt talk much it was quick 20m and still the second doctor said the same slight depression and gad this time the description is 75g of venlafaxine should i take the med or see a third one